THINGS THAT CHANGE.

BY MRS. HEMANS.

Knowest thou that seas are sweeping
Where cities once have been?
Where the calm wave is sleeping,
There towers may yet be seen;
Far down below the glassy tide
Man's dwelling 's where his voice hath died.

Knowest thou that flocks are feeding
Above the tombs of old,
Which kings, their armies leading,
Have lingered to behold?
A short smooth green sward o'er them spread,
Is all that marks where heroes bled.

Knowest thou that now the token
Of temples once renowned,
Is but a pillar, broken,
With grass and wall-flowers crowned?
And the lone serpent bears her young
Where the triumphant lyre hath rung.

Well, well I know the story
Of ages past away,
And through the mournful wrecks that glory
Has left to dull decay;
But thou hast yet a tale to learn,
More full of warning, sad, and stern.

Thy pensive eye but ranges,
O'er ruined fane, and hall;
Oh! the deep soul has changes
More sorrowful than all.
Talk not, whilst these before thee throng,
Of silence in the place of song.

See scorn—where love has perished,
Distrust—where friendship grew;
Pride—where nature cherished
All tender thoughts and true!
And shadows of oblivion thrown
O'er every trace of idols gone.

Weep not for tombs far-scattered,
For temples prostrate laid—
In thine own heart lie scattered,
The altars it had made.
Go, sound its depths in doubt and fear!
Heap up no more its treasures here.

MARY FAULKNER.

The story of Mary Faulkner is easily told—it comprises a brief history of the sufferings of betrayed and desolating innocence—of the villany of man, and the cold ingratitude of sunshine friends.

Well was Mary known to us; she was one of the companions of those guiltless days, when the young heart beats with extacy; when the mind dwells on nothing but the pursuit of happiness, and dreams not of the sorrows and afflictions, which ever attend the subsequent days of the earthly sojourner. She was the pride of the young society, through which she roved—the hope and solace of her parents, for fondly they looked up to her, as the soother of their sorrows—as the pledge of their united love, as their joy on earth, and hope beyond the grave. They doated upon her with a misguided fondness, bordering on destruction; and if the wind of heaven blew too rudely upon her graceful form, they would weep for her, as if the idle blast of an autumnal day, spoke in foreboding terms of the desolation of their offspring; for she "————was her parents only joy,

They had but one, one darling child."

The father of Mary was a ship-master, and following his vocation with indefatigable industry, was often absent a year at a time; yet though distant from the land of his nativity, still was he near to his loves, for when lulled to repose, as he reclined upon his sea-rocked hammock, in his dreams, he visited his home, felt the warm pressure of "love's honied kiss," and enraptured, gazed upon the dawning beauties of Mary, and was happy.

It was whilst Capt Faulkner was absent on a voyage to the Indian Ocean, that the charms of Mary arrested the attention of Damon Harroby, a young gentleman of rank and fortune; and, who, after a short acquaintance, declared to the innocent and unsuspecting girl, his attachment; protested, that without her the world were a wilderness, and solicited her hand in wedlock. Unused to the arts and wiles of man, Mary listened to his tale of love; and whilst a crimson blush suffused her cheek, acknowledged the reciprocity of his ardent flame.

Pleased with the manners, the rank, and fortune of Damon, the mother encouraged his address, and thought she was sealing the happiness of her daughter. Honorable in all her views, she believed others equally honorable, and dreamed not, that whilst she encouraged the visits of Damon, she cherished a viper, whose poison was far more deadly in its influence, than the salava of the fabled Upas, of Java. The love of the young couple now became a matter of public notoriety; and whilst the friends of the family rejoiced at the prospect of so happy and important a union, the envious crowd, the idle gazer, and the busy tongue of scandal were eagerly engaged in trying to cut off the consumation of the early hopes of Mary Faulkner. Rumors of impropriety and acts of imprudence, were daily circulated, until the whole community was engaged in the common discussion of tales of scandal—reported of the then innocent, but, alas, in the end proved too true.

At this period, Capt Faulkner returned home from the Indies; success had crowned his efforts—fortune had smiled upon his labors—and bringing with him an abundance of this world's goods, he flattered himself, that now relieved from the cares and vexations, and dangers of the seas, he could sit down for life, by his own domestic fire-side, and enjoy the caresses of his family, and never wander more. But alas! ill fated man; he returned only to partake of the bitterness of affliction—to draw from the poisoned chalice of human woe, its last dregs.

Mary, in the fulness of joy, presented to her parent the object of her choice, and enraptured, saw her father smile with an emotion of delight, as he gazed upon the graceful form of Damon Harroby, and dwell with rapture on the manliness of his language;—and as a sigh escaped her surcharged bosom, she said to herself, my happiness is complete—I ask for no more. But ill-fated girl, at that very moment she stood upon the parapet of ruin.

The family of Damon, reared to the indulgence of aristocratic ideas, fancying themselves elevated far beyond the humble estate of Mary Faulkner, now became clamorous at the prospect of the union, and exerted themselves to their utmost, to wean from him the affectionate regard he had expressed for her, for whom he either and in the end, they proved too successful; for in their design, they were aided by the scandal of a babling world. Damon's mind was soon altered—his visits to the house of Capt. Faulkner were less frequent, and ever when he did call, there was a marked difference in his demeanor—a coldness of manner and expression, which but too evidently told that his affections were on the wane.

"Feigned, or felt a flame;"

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS.
SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1846.

NEWPORT.—The season is rapidly approaching when our ancient town will be the most fashionable watering place in America. In about four weeks, every steamboat will come crowded, and our splendid Hotels will be filled to their utmost capacity. In fact the whole tide will turn this way, and the great rush will be made to Newport instead of Saratoga, as heretofore.—We see nothing to prevent this,—for certainly there is no spot on the earth, more beautifully located, and the salubrity of its climate, its pure invigorating air, and its sea-bathing, is alone enough to attract those who are seeking for health or pleasure.—The rides around Newport are exquisite, and the scenery pretty. The fishing is excellent, and there is good shooting within a short distance. The Hotels are all of the first class, and in the best order: of these, however, we shall speak another time.—Amusements of all kinds are to be had here in perfection, in the summer time, and there is nothing to prevent any one from enjoying himself, to his utmost satisfaction. Some of the most splendid balls and parties are given here, that it is possible to conceive of; and the votaries of fashionable pleasure can find the idol of their worship, in the meridian of its magnificence, in Newport.

Again, those who are seeking a healthy spot, and have no desire to mingle in the excitement of gay life, can be well accommodated here. We have an abundance of private boarding-houses, both in the centre of the town, and on its borders, which are well calculated for invalids, and at these establishments, every comfort may be found, and there will be no noise to disturb them.

No town of its size, is better supplied with able and skilful physicians, than Newport; and the sick can be as comfortable and happy here, as at home; and, at the same time, derive all the benefits which are peculiar to the place. The celebrated water from the Springs, which alone attracts people there, can be obtained here, fresh and in good order, a very few hours after it is bottled at Saratoga, and other Springs. Therefore, visitors at Newport, can have all the virtues of the various watering places in the country, combined, in addition to the very many, which cannot be obtained anywhere, except here.

This year, there will be a little squadron of yachts in our harbor, from various places in the Union; and if our relations with England continue peaceable, several are expected from London and Liverpool,—so that amateur navigators will have strong attractions here, the coming summer. It is a splendid sight, to behold our beautiful harbor filled with these neat little vessels, spreading their snow-white canvass to the breeze, and starting on a race up the bay, or out toward the ocean.

We might go on at great length, and expatiate on the inducements which Newport offers to those who flee from the hot and dusty cities, during the summer, until our paper was full; but this is useless. We have said enough, and its fame has long since gone forth to the world, and this summer will convince any one, that the attractions of Newport are known and appreciated by the tasteful.

☞It is stated that the company which owned and carried on the extensive Print Works, at North Adams, Mass., has failed.

STEAMER ROGER WILLIAMS.—This splendid steamer will commence her trips again to-morrow. She will leave Providence at 8 o'clock, A. M., on an excursion to this place, and will leave here again at 5 o'clock, P. M. She will commence her regular trips on Monday next, leaving Providence every day, Sundays excepted, at 6 o'clock, P. M., on the arrival of the accommodation train from Boston. She will leave here every day, except Mondays, at 6 o'clock, A. M., arriving in Providence in ample time for the accommodation train for Boston.—Every Sunday, the Roger Williams will make an excursion from Providence to Newport and back; leaving Providence at 8 o'clock, A. M., and Newport at 5 o'clock. P. M.

☞For a few days past, the Cutter Jackson, stationed at this port, has been lying at the Custom House wharf, to receive some slight repairs to fit her for her summer duties.

While at this wharf, many of the ladies and gentlemen of this town, availed themselves of the facilities thus afforded, to visit the Cutter, and make their calls upon Capt. Webster, her gallant commander. The Cutter was found to be in most excellent condition, and her commander very much at home. His civilities and hospitalities were equally, and indiscriminately extended to his visitors,—all of whom speak in the highest terms of his efforts to make their visits agreeable.

It may not be generally known, that during the last war, Capt. W. was with Commodore Barney, in the private armed brig Rossie, frequently in our port. He was with that veteran, when he received his severe wounds, at the battle of Bladensburgh. In that battle, by the the side of his Commodore, the horse upon which Capt. W. was seated, was shot, and he had many hair-breadth escapes. He is now the senior officer in the Revenue Marine Service, and long may he live, for the benefit of his friends, and his country.

☞The May Term of the Court of Common Pleas, for the County of Newport, will commence in this town, on Tuesday morning next, at 10 o'clock.

☞There is "a strong probability that Congress will adjourn sometime between the first of June and the first of July, and that the tariff bill will be passed over to the next session.—Newport Daily News.

"There is a strong probability" that you are humbugging yourself, Mr. News, and that Congress will not adjourn before August—and then not without having modified the present tariff act. It's all "a batch of blunders!"—"tariff" act" and all.—New London Star.

"Don't be so sharp!" How can we help being humbugged, while we read the Star?

☞We are requested to say, that the Rev. Doct. Romel Elton, is expected to preach, at the North Baptist Church to-morrow.

☞An officer of the U. S. Navy left St. Louis on the 22d ult., on his way to Fort Leavenworth, where he is to obtain an escort to conduct him to California. He is allowed, one hundred days to perform the trip, and is charged with instructions to the U. S. Navy now in the Pacific.

☞Of Florida, a paper says:—"Corn at present is knee high, and green peas, cucumbers, and oranges are daily luxuries."

☞The different companies of volunteer soldiery of Philadelphia have become thoroughly aroused, and are busily preparing for any emergency which may call for their services. Nightly drills have been ordered by several of the captains.

BY THIS MORNING'S MAIL.

LATER FROM POINT ISABEL.

Correspondent of the N. Y. Sun.

BALTIMORE, Thursday, 7 o'clock P. M.

The Telegraph has announced to us the arrival of the Southern mail. N. Orleans papers of the 7th instant, containing no further intelligence from the seat of war, the Baltimore Sun has received the following dispatch from Washington by Telegraph, which contains items from verbal information from Point Isabel of considerable interest.

I have conversed with Mr. R. L. Ogden, a settler attached to the U. S. Army, who has this moment arrived in a Southern boat. He left Point Isabel on on the 30th ult.

There were then about 350 men at that post, who could be depended on.

The armament consisted of two 18 pounders, nine six pounders, every man had a musket. The point was surrounded by a ditch, four feet deep and six feet wide.—They were diging entrenchments.

Point Isabel was completely cut off from the army, having had no communication with them for two days.

The guides started from the point for the camp, but were compelled to return.

The very latest advices left no doubt that Gen. Taylor was completely surrounded.

No danger, however, is apprehended to our gallant band, except from starvation.

They were strongly entrenched. It is said a more gallant officer never lived.

The supposition was that the Texas volunteers from Galveston by the Steamer Monmouth would be the first to reach Point Isabel.

Companies from Fort Pike, H & Y. from Fort Wood, under command of Col. B. K. Pierce, of the 1st artillery, and company F. from Jefferson Barracks, were to leave for Point Isabel on the 6th, Wednesday week, and would reach Point Isabel in 70 hours.

Capt. Thornton and Lieut. Mason were still missing without any tidings or information as to their supply up to the evening the last express left the camp.

There were no tidings of them then and none since.

The propellor Florida was to be the next to reach New Orleans. It is said that Gov. Edwards, of New Orleans, had arrived here this evening, direct from Mobile.

He states that it is currently reported and believed that Point Isabel is captured.

We have advices to the 2d May, and then Point Isabel was safe, but the letter gives no further particulars.

This comprises all of the slightest interest, with the exception of military movements in the South, that has been received by the mail.

LATER FROM NEW ORLEANS.

The New Orleans Picayune of May 7th, says: The rank of volunteer companies were filling up but slowly, last evening there were seven full companies mustered, and only waiting to be equipped and ordered to march.

We learn that the schooner Augusta sailed from the barracks to-day with troops, and that the Galveston, which sails this afternoon, will carry a number of companies. We learn from the clerk of the steamer Montmorency, from St. Louis, that a battalion of troops from different barracks, numbering about 900 men, were to start on board steamer Brilliant, and are expected to-day or to-morrow. No foundation for the rumor, that Mr. Pakenham sent in a protest against the United States war with Mexico.

☞We learn that Lieut. Porter made a most gallant defence before he was killed, taking several horses from the Mexicans, and pursuing them some distance.

☞We understand that all our revenue cutters which can be spared, are to rendezvous in the Gulf of Mexico immediately. They are well adapted to this service.

☞The war panic has created a fall in price of stocks in New York, of from 2 to 5 per cent.

WAR PROCLAMATION ISSUED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Whereas, The Congress of the U. States, by virtue of the constitutional authority vested in them, have declared by their act, bearing date this day, that by the act of the Republic of Mexico, a state of war exists between the two Governments: Now, therefore, I, James K. Polk, President of these United States of America, do hereby proclaim the same to all whom it may concern; and I do specially enjoin on all persons holding offices, military or civil, under the authority of the United States, that they be vigilant and zealous in discharging the duties respectively incident thereto.

And I do moreover exhort all the good people of the United States, as they love their country, as they feel the wrongs which have forced on them the last resort of injured nations, and as they consult the best means under the blessing of Divine Providence of abridging the calamities, that they exert themselves in preserving order, in promoting concord, and maintaining the authority—the efficiency of the Laws in supporting and invigorating all the means which may be adopted by the Constitutional Authorities for obtaining a speedy termination and an honorable peace.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed to these presents.

Done at the city of Washington the 13th day of May, 1846, and year of the Independence of the United States the seventieth. JAMES K. POLK.

By the President:
JAMES BUCHANAN, Secretary.

THE Subscriber would respectfully give notice to the Ladies and Gentlemen of this place and vicinity, that he has taken and refitted the rooms formerly occupied by him, in the R. Union Bank Buildings, for the purpose of executing MINIATURES by the Daguerreotype Process. Having but a short time since returned from New York, with all the LATEST IMPROVEMENTS, he feels confident that he can give those that will honor him with a call, a miniature superior in tone, and finish, to any ever before offered to the public, and at prices that cannot fail to please.

None know how to appreciate these Miniatures, until they are called to part with a near relation, or an intimate friend, when perhaps it may be too late, to catch the light ere their shadow fades; therefore, those that wish a correct likeness, as well as a fine picture, of themselves, or friends, will do well to give an early call.

Any person having fine Paintings, Portraits, or Miniatures, can have them copied with great accuracy.

These Miniatures can be set in Lockets, Pins, Frames, Cases, &c., to suit the purchaser.

Persons sitting for a Miniature at these rooms, is warranted a perfect Likeness or no charge.

Miniatures can be taken as accurate in cloudy weather, as in pleasant, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 4 P. M. WILLIAM A. JUDSON.

HOUSE TO LET.

"Strange that a harp of thousand strings
Should keep in tune so long."

THE subscriber has several chambers to let in his house which is beautifully located directly opposite Trinity Church Burying Ground; he will rent the rooms with furniture, or without, as may best suit the tenant. There is, probably, no more desirable spot in Newport, for those whose souls are not entirely steeped in sin, and wrapped up in the flimsy veil of this world's delusion; the occupant may sit at the window, and view the last home of man in all its mysterious and solemn grandeur,—and seriously reflect upon the great uncertainty of all things human. Here he can commune with himself, and meditate, in full view of the grave yard, on the final consummation of all things, and anticipate that universal crash, when the earth shall be burned up, and the heavens be rolled together as a scroll. We must reflect upon these things here, and be prepared with our passport when we meet the last Tyler, or we shall receive the fatal mark of the black brush; why, land! what is a few day's sojourn in this miserable world, compared to a high seat in the Celestial Lodge above, where the Knighthood will be gathered in the pure robes of innocence and beauty!

In order to secure the chambers, early application should be made, to
